2. Cleric promised help in passing exams in exchange for “sexual acts”

What’s going on? Remember Aziz ur Rehman, a Muslim cleric and member of the Jamiat Ulema-e-Islam Fazal (JUI-F) religious party? In June this year, police arrested Rehman and filed charges against him for sexually assaulting one of his students at the Jamia Manzoor-ul-Islamia (i.e. a religious school/madrassa). A police investigation uncovered that Rehman “lured” his student into committing “sexual acts” with him for three years.

The details: According to the recent police report, the survivor, a male in his early 20s, told police that Rehman accused him and another student of cheating on their exams. The survivor said he was banned from giving exams at the Wafaqul Madaris (i.e. a body that oversees the religious school system). Then, the survivor suggested that Rehman blackmailed him into being sexually assaulted.
